LITERATURE OF THE DAY SHIPBUILDING IN MAINE.

In Ba'h, Maine, there are now twentyone vessels building, of which five are of two thousand tons and upward. In addition to these, twenty-two vessels have been launched since January 1, 1882, having an aggregate toninge of twenty-seven thousand six hundred and thirty-eight tons. The total tonnage for the year 1882 will be about forty two thousand tons. Last year thirty-six thousand three hundred and thirty-four tons were built at Bath, and in 1874, thirty-four thousand one hundred tons, The largest tonnage was built in 1854until 1860 the building fell off rapidly, being only eighteen thousand four bundred tous in 1850. Indeed, all the statistics show that wooden ship building began to decline five or six year previous to the year last mentioned. Its greatest decline in Bath was during the years just before the war of 1861. The total tonunge built at Bath, from 1860 to 1881, was four hundred and sixty-four thousand two hundred and seventeen tons. No labor is better paid than that employed at Bath in shipbuilding. Ever week this season twenty thousand dollars has been paid as wages by the Bath builders. A builder employing about one hundred and fifty men says that his weekly payments were two thousand five handred dollars for wages-an average of sixteen dollars and sixty-six cents per week to each man. The ship mechanics live in good style: in scores of in instances owning houses that may be called elegant and horses and carriages that would be the envy of those who delight in stylish turnouts. They are well-to-do, substantial and intellishipbuilding, but by far the larger part of Bath's vessels is brought from the South .-

A SINGULAR STREET SCENE.

Portland Press.

When Music, heavenly maid, was young," warbles a writer in the Louisville Courier Journal, "I have no doubt she kicked over the traces and acted as erratically as all her sister muses. But at the Sturdty Mitines at 2 present day she has gone soberly and seriously into business. The musical vagabond has become a respectable citizen, with lines of duty distinctly marked out. Passing up Thirty-six:h street to-day, between F.fth and Sixth avenues, my attention was attracted to a crowd on the sidewalk which three with tandem application ... It was safe distance to listen to them partly from natural indolence and partly from a enriceity to learn how much torture the human mind could endure in the way of an experiment. THE UPAS VALLEY STORY.

Another romantic' tradition has been refuted by Dr. Otto Kuutze's discovery that the lethal capacities of Pakamaran, the renowned Javanese Death Valley, are as utterly fabulous as the Norweigian Kraaken, or Richard of Gloucester's hump. It is no longer permitted to us to believe that the effects of the subtle poison given off by the "Deadly Upas Tree" have bearown the dismal vale with countless carcases of anvage beasts, serpents and birds, or that a certain death awaits any foolhardy traveler attempting to cross it; for the emittent German explorer has paid Pakamaran an exhaustive visit, and reports it to be as healthy as any other part of the island, In the way of corpses, he did not see so much gent citizens. Maine still furnishes much as a dead fly within its precincts. He deof the hard wood and hackmatack used in acribes it as a small circular depression in a gorge of the Dieng Mountains, about seven square metres in size and forlorn of vegatation. It is approached by two footpaths, winding downward from the bills by which it is surrounded. By one of these paths Dr. Kuntz entered the Death Valley despite the entreaties of his guides and servants, one of whom repeatedly strove to hold him back by force, and having traversed Pakamaran in every direction, quitted it by the other path. The natives had assured him. that he would find the Valley choked up by skeletons, as even the swifest birds figing above it would drop down stone dead, slainby its poisonous exhalations. In vain, however, did he look about for a single bone; nor could be detect the least unpleasuit odor. Dr. Kantze pronounces Pakamaran to be an imposture, the offspring of ignorvale to the mino of explotion by the
